In 2005, Washington State approved legislation allowing counties to raise their local sales tax by one-tenth of one percent to augment state funding of mental health and chemical dependency programs and services, and for the operation or delivery of therapeutic court programs or services. The Kitsap County Board of Commissioners adopted the Mental Health, Chemical Dependency, and Therapeutic Court Sales Tax on September 23, 2013.

June 30, 2016 marked the second year of service delivery in the Kitsap County community. This report summarizes programs funded, services delivered, outcomes measured and recommendations for the future. Significant accomplishments include:

- ◆ 99% elementary school staff and 96% of secondary school staff report improvements in their school's ability to respond effectively to students' behavioral health needs.
- ◆ 94% of the participants who completed Juvenile Drug Court or Individualized Treatment Court have not committed another offense.
- ◆ In students with an identified substance use reduction goal, 78% report reduction in binge drinking.

Success Story: West Sound Treatment Center

Brent, a 32 year old male, was incarcerated for 8 months, completed Moral Reconciliation Therapy (MRT) in Jail Treatment, and has resided at New Start House for men for the past three months. He was a prior six-digit income earner with a Masters' Degree however, his addiction to heroin destroyed his career. He will be 1 year sober in less than a month, has reunited with his young daughter, and is taking parenting classes. Kate, a 23 year old single mom, completed MRT in-jail treatment and resides at the New Start House for women. She has regular visitation now with her young daughter, is working full-time and just received "employee of the month" at her job. Kate has 9 months sober, participates in Celebrate Recovery, and sings with the choir at her church. Both Brent and Kate attend Continuing Care & Compass Vocational Services at West Sound Treatment Center.

Mental Illness and drug or alcohol addictions are medical conditions that can be effectively treated. Millions of Americans and their families are in healthy recovery from this disease. Learning about some of the most common mental and substance use disorders can help people recognize their signs and to seek help.

Am I addicted? Here are some questions to ask yourself or someone you know. If the answer to some or all of these questions is yes, you might have an addiction.

- Did you ever try to stop or cut down on your alcohol or drug use but couldn't?
- Have you ever used alcohol or a drug without knowing what it was or what it would do to you?
- Have you ever made mistakes at a job or at school because you were using alcohol or drugs?
- Does the thought of running out of alcohol or drugs really scare you?
- Have you ever stolen alcohol or drugs or stolen stuff to pay for alcohol or drugs?
- Have you ever been arrested or in the hospital because of your alcohol or drug use?
- Have you ever overdosed on alcohol or drugs?

Am I depressed? If you identify with several of the following signs and symptoms—especially the first two—and they just won't go away, you may be suffering from depression.

- You feel hopeless and helpless?
- You've lost interest in friends, activities, and things you used to enjoy?
- You feel tired all the time?
- Your sleep and appetite has changed?
- You can't concentrate or find that previously easy tasks are now difficult?
- You can't control your negative thoughts, no matter how much you try?
- You are much more irritable, short-tempered, or aggressive than usual?

Mental Illness and drug or alcohol addictions affect people from all walks of life and all age groups. These illnesses are common, recurrent, and often serious, but they are treatable and many people do recover.

How common is Mental Illness?

- More than 60 million adults—1 in 4 in America—suffer from mental illness, ranging from panic disorders to depression.
- Nearly 14 million—almost 6 in 100—live with a serious mental illness such as bipolar disorder, schizophrenia and severe depression.
- An estimated 15 million children—about 1 in 5—have a mental disorder. The most common among children is attention deficit hyperactivity disorder.
- About 20 percent of youth between ages 13 to 18 experience severe mental disorder.
- 1 in 5 people held in America's prisons and jails has a recent history of mental illness. 7 in 10 youth in the juvenile justice systems have at least one mental health disorder.

How common is Substance Abuse?

- 23.4% of adults 18 years and over have had at least one heavy drinking day (five or more drinks for men and four or more drinks for women) in the past year.
- 10.2% persons 12 years of age and over use any illicit drug use in the past month.
- 64% of 12th graders in America have used alcohol in their lifetime.
- 49% of 12th graders in America have used illicit drugs in their lifetime. The most common is marijuana, with 45% using in their lifetime.
- 21% of 12th graders have used marijuana in the past month, with 6% using marijuana daily. Research indicates that 1 in 11 marijuana users aged 15 or older become dependent on marijuana.
- In Washington State, the rate of all opiate deaths (heroin and/or Rx-type) has nearly doubled in the past decade.

Studies show that people with mental health problems get better and many recover completely. Recovery refers to the process in which people are able to live, work, learn, and participate fully in their communities. There are more treatments, services, and community support systems than ever before, and they work.
